Executive Summary

The III Ibero-American Cooperation Quadrennial Action Plan (PACCI) 2023-2026, approved at the XXVIII Ibero-American Summit, sets a comprehensive framework to advance sustainable development and the 2030 Agenda across 22 member countries. Building on lessons from previous cycles, the plan introduces eight strategic axes: strengthening cooperation systems, social cohesion, knowledge, gender equality, culture, environment, justice and public innovation, and sustainable productive transformation. It emphasizes cross-cutting approaches such as bilingualism, gender, non-discrimination, environmental sustainability, and enhanced visibility. The PACCI prioritizes inclusive policies for vulnerable groups, health, digitalization, environmental action, and gender mainstreaming. Governance improvements, robust monitoring, and evaluation mechanisms are established to ensure alignment, accountability, and measurable progress. The plan fosters multi-level, multi-stakeholder partnerships, aiming to consolidate Ibero-American Cooperation as a regional benchmark for achieving the Sustainable Development Goals.

- Multilateralism (Regional & International Cooperation) (Regional & International Cooperation) - Relevance: 1.0

Justification: Multilateralism and regional/international cooperation are the core of the document, which is the Quadrennial Action Plan for Ibero-American Cooperation. The entire plan is structured around strengthening cooperation among the 22 Ibero-American countries, aligning with the UN 2030 Agenda, and leveraging multilateral mechanisms (PIPAs, sectoral networks, organizations) to address shared challenges. The governance, mission, vision, and most strategic axes are built on this foundation, making it the most central and extensively covered theme.

- Digital Transformation & Strategy (Digital Agenda, Digital Acceleration, Digital Platforms, etc.) (Digital Transformation & Strategy) - Relevance: 0.92

Justification: Digital transformation is a major strategic axis and cross-cutting theme in the document. It is addressed both as a dedicated axis (Axis 3: Knowledge, innovation, digital transformation) and as a key enabler for productive transformation, education, inclusion, and governance. The plan details digital policy, infrastructure, skills, and the Ibero-American Digital Agenda, reflecting the region's commitment to digital acceleration as a driver for sustainable development and regional competitiveness. The amount of content and its strategic positioning make it the second most important theme.

- Inclusion & Social Development (Social Cohesion, Digital Inclusion, Gender Equality, etc.) (Inclusion & Social Development) - Relevance: 0.89

Justification: Inclusion and social development are central to the plan's objectives and are reflected in multiple strategic axes (Axis 2: Social Cohesion, Axis 4: Gender, cross-cutting approaches). The document dedicates significant content to promoting inclusive policies for vulnerable groups, gender equality, non-discrimination, and digital inclusion. These themes are directly tied to the SDGs and the plan's mission to 'leave no one behind,' making them strategically vital and highly central to the document's commitments.

- Policy Level Representatives (Political Actors)
- Community of Latin American and Caribbean States (Political Actors)
- Governments (Political Actors) - Relevance: 0.95
